

MP support for Public Sector Paperless Awards

Parliamentary Secretary and Minister for Implementation Oliver Dowden, has lent his support to GovNewsDirect for their Public Sector Paperless Awards. The Awards are a recognition of excellence in the public sector for innovations in transformation, digitising information and reducing paper waste.

"A year has passed since the inaugural Public Sector Paperless Awards, and we are delighted to see the impact it has had in supporting the government's wider goals for digital transformation.

We have seen a significant increase in the number of nominations for the 2018 awards which is a clear demonstration of the public sector's commitment to digital transformation. It is fantastic that the awards have inspired more people to come forward and showcase the great steps they are already taking, but also to strive for further excellence.

Streamlining operations and finding smarter ways of working is a top priority for the Government."
